

McCallum Silk Hosiery

Make Ideal Gifts for "Her" Majesty

Our Hosiery Department is well worth visiting at this holiday hour—so many practical suggestions here.

Novelties here are not only fascinatingly beautiful, but remarkably good values. Like all McCallum products, they have a fine, even weave that characterizes superior hosiery. Made of the richest silks, and made with the utmost care—these stockings are not equalled as gifts, that will bring delight to the heart of any woman.

Pure Thread Silk Hosiery, with lace insert of Irish point and Venice, in black and white, from $2.95 up to $3.20.

Hand-Embroidered Hosiery, set with rhinestones, on pure thread silk, a pair, $2.95.

Pure Thread Silk Hand-Cloaked Hosiery, black on white and white on black, pair, $2.00.

Hand-Colored Dreaden Hosiery, on finest quality silk, in different floral designs, that harmonize with any dress; pair, $5.00.

Lace Boot Silk Hosiery, in black and white, fancy tops; pair, $2.95.

Pure Silk Hosiery of extra weight, with lace heel and toe, in all colors; at pair, $1.00.

Kaufmann & Company
Corner Fourth and Broad Streets.

Social and Personal

Thanksgiving Day was celebrated generally with informal family dinners and smaller functions, mostly in honor of the younger society set and the many out-of-town visitors here for the holidays. All of the clubs kept open house, and an enormous crowd witnessed the annual football game in the afternoon between the universities of Virginia and North Carolina. Society was out in full force in the evening to witness the performance of "The Merry Widow" at the Academy, where the two teams were entertained in box parties, the younger girls and men going later to the dance at the Masonic Temple. This was a brilliant affair, and several hundred out-of-town guests were present.

Miss Rose and Mrs. Thomas West Elliott, the latter formerly Miss Rosalie Valen, whose wedding was a brilliant society event of this month, have returned from their honeymoon. Mr. and Mrs. Elliott spent several weeks in New York City.

Dunlop Flour
IT'S MADE IN RICHMOND
PAT. DUNLOP FLOUR CO. LTD.

Sydner & Hundley are showing the largest collection of HANDSOME FURNITURE this season they have ever exhibited. GIFT PIECES A SPECIALTY.

THE REINACH CO., Inc.
107 E. BROAD STREET.
MILLINERY—Women's and Misses' Outer Apparel.

Gas Ranges Reduced 10%
ROBERT & CO.
RICHMOND, VA.

THE PI MU FRATERNITY HOUSE, at 110 East Street, was the scene of a Tuesday evening of a handsome reception given by the wives of the alumni in the city. The rooms were arranged with flowers carrying out the autumn and gold colors of the organization and palms and ferns banked the stage and stairway. An orchestra played for the dancing. A buffet supper was served at 11 o'clock. Among those present were Dr. and Mrs. Paul Howie, Sr. and Mrs. N. T. Elliott, Dr. and Mrs. J. P. Price, Dr. and Mrs. A. L. Gray, Mrs. Irving, Dr. and Mrs. W. L. Peple, Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Shepherd, Dr. and Mrs. Stuart McHaux, Dr. and Mrs. Greer Baughman, Dr. McGuire Newton, Miss Randolph, Dr. and Mrs. Herbert Mann, Dr. and Mrs. Garrett Nelson, Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Bassett, Dr. and Mrs. W. B. Lorraine, David Hill, Miss Ruth Bell, Bentley Byrd, Miss Catherine Bell, Hunter, Dr. Gregory, Miss Helen Keim, Earl Watkins, Miss Hattie Courtney, Stuart Scott, Miss Lee Courtney, Martin Stuart, Miss Brecken, James Ames, Miss Evelyn, Mr. T. W. Wood, Miss Clara Miller, Moorehead Emmett, Miss Gentry, Blair Fitz, Miss Pierce, W. B. Traws, Miss Whitehead, Allen Burch, Miss Watkins, Joseph Parrymore, Miss Frazer, Claud Culver, Miss Selden, Dean Cooke, Miss Dupee, William Scott, Miss Mary Winn, James Braswell, Miss Elizabeth Winn, Hoywood Westcott, Miss Stephenson, Dr. M. P. Rucker, Miss Rucker, Dr. E. L. Goodwyn, Miss Robertson, Dr. E. C. Willis, Dr. Fulmer Bright, Dr. McAvoy, Dr. S. C. Bowen, Dr. Karl Blackwell, Dr. Stuart McGuire and H. M. Barker.

McDougal Kitchen Cabinets and Detroit Jewel Gas Ranges make sweet tempered housewives.

JURGENS
Adams and Broad.

THE FREED CO.
107 E. BROAD STREET.

Hopkins Furniture Co.
7 West Broad St.
Cash or Credit.

The House of Fashion
Bernard, Frances & Co.
Broad and Fifth Streets

McDougal Kitchen Cabinets and Detroit Jewel Gas Ranges make sweet tempered housewives.

JURGENS
Adams and Broad.

THE FREED CO.
107 E. BROAD STREET.

Hopkins Furniture Co.
7 West Broad St.
Cash or Credit.

The House of Fashion
Bernard, Frances & Co.
Broad and Fifth Streets

McDougal Kitchen Cabinets and Detroit Jewel Gas Ranges make sweet tempered housewives.

JURGENS
Adams and Broad.

THE FREED CO.
107 E. BROAD STREET.

Hopkins Furniture Co.
7 West Broad St.
Cash or Credit.

The House of Fashion
Bernard, Frances & Co.
Broad and Fifth Streets

McDougal Kitchen Cabinets and Detroit Jewel Gas Ranges make sweet tempered housewives.

JURGENS
Adams and Broad.

Goldsmith, Katherine Kelby, Ellen Shea, Elizabeth Siewers, Julia Siewers, Annie Tucker, Ellen Tucker, Philip Grace, Henry O'Grady, Otto Grashaber, James Tucker, Leonard Foster, Fred Overman, Temple Atkinson, Henry Ridenour, Robert Amos, Joseph McDonough, Lawrence Siewers, Eugene McDonough, Norman Ford, William Forestal, Gibson Baughman, Milton Barnes, Fred John, Edward and Lawrence Fletcher.

Martined in Washington.
The marriage of Miss Lena Elizabeth Alta and Thomas D. McCain, Jr., both of this city, was celebrated in Washington on Wednesday, the Rev. Father William J. Brooks officiating. Mr. and Mrs. McCain will be at home to their friends after December 1.

Charity Affairs.
The women of St. Benedictine's Sanctuary Society will give a euchre party this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the assembly-room of the Benedictine College, corner of Shepherd and Stuart Avenues. It will be a very attractive event, and refreshments will be served at the card tables following the game.

This evening at 8:15 o'clock there will be an entertainment at Leigh Street Church under the auspices and for the benefit of the Inactive Visiting Nurses' Association. Rev. John J. Parsons, formerly of New York, will give an evening of dramatic readings and songs, and the program will be a very interesting one.

Beginning Monday night, December 1, and continuing throughout the week an entertainment will be given each day by the women of the Seventh Street Christian Church. Attractive programs have been arranged to interest the children in the afternoons and musical entertainments will be given in the evenings.

In and Out of Town.
Miss Kate Sedon, who has been visiting Miss Mary Williams on West Franklin Street, is returning to New York to-day.

Miss Ellie Wood Page, of the University of Virginia, is visiting friends here for several days.

Miss Katherine Noland, of Baltimore, is the guest of Mrs. Preston Noland for several weeks.

Misses Therese Nurney and Virginia Shoop, of Suffolk, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Smyth at their home on Monument Avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Virgilus Shaeffer, of Greenback, Va., of Orange, spent Thanksgiving with relatives in Richmond.

Randolph Owen, of North Carolina, is spending several days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben P. Owen, at "Buck Hill."

Miss Rose Hayward and John R. Hayward, of Roanoke, are spending several days with friends in this city.

Robert and Boyd Todd spent Thanksgiving in Richmond as the guests of their mother, Mrs. Robert B. Todd.

Mr. and Mrs. P. and Miss P. of Raleigh, N. C., motored to Richmond this week, and are now visiting Mr. and Mrs. Herbert W. Jackson on West Franklin Street.

Miss Lucile Nelson has returned from Staunton, where she spent several days with friends.

Mrs. Keith is spending the holidays with his father, Judge James Keith, on Cathedral Place.

Baker-Buckner.
Gordonville, Va., November 27.—Miss Marshall Buckner, daughter of Mrs. Marshall Buckner, and George Baker, of "Hopewell," were married at the Presbyterian Church on Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. H. Hudson. The church was prettily decorated with palms, ferns and floral arrangements. The bride and groom standing under a white marriage veil.

Miss Agnes Beckham played the accompaniment.

At Home Saturday.
Mr. and Mrs. Leon Wenberg will be at home to their friends on Saturday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock, at 290 West George Street, the occasion being the Bar Mitzvah of their son.

Fraternity Reception.
The Pi Mu Fraternity House, at 110 East Street, was the scene of a Tuesday evening of a handsome reception given by the wives of the alumni in the city. The rooms were arranged with flowers carrying out the autumn and gold colors of the organization and palms and ferns banked the stage and stairway. An orchestra played for the dancing. A buffet supper was served at 11 o'clock. Among those present were Dr. and Mrs. Paul Howie, Sr. and Mrs. N. T. Elliott, Dr. and Mrs. J. P. Price, Dr. and Mrs. A. L. Gray, Mrs. Irving, Dr. and Mrs. W. L. Peple, Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Shepherd, Dr. and Mrs. Stuart McHaux, Dr. and Mrs. Greer Baughman, Dr. McGuire Newton, Miss Randolph, Dr. and Mrs. Herbert Mann, Dr. and Mrs. Garrett Nelson, Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Bassett, Dr. and Mrs. W. B. Lorraine, David Hill, Miss Ruth Bell, Bentley Byrd, Miss Catherine Bell, Hunter, Dr. Gregory, Miss Helen Keim, Earl Watkins, Miss Hattie Courtney, Stuart Scott, Miss Lee Courtney, Martin Stuart, Miss Brecken, James Ames, Miss Evelyn, Mr. T. W. Wood, Miss Clara Miller, Moorehead Emmett, Miss Gentry, Blair Fitz, Miss Pierce, W. B. Traws, Miss Whitehead, Allen Burch, Miss Watkins, Joseph Parrymore, Miss Frazer, Claud Culver, Miss Selden, Dean Cooke, Miss Dupee, William Scott, Miss Mary Winn, James Braswell, Miss Elizabeth Winn, Hoywood Westcott, Miss Stephenson, Dr. M. P. Rucker, Miss Rucker, Dr. E. L. Goodwyn, Miss Robertson, Dr. E. C. Willis, Dr. Fulmer Bright, Dr. McAvoy, Dr. S. C. Bowen, Dr. Karl Blackwell, Dr. Stuart McGuire and H. M. Barker.

McDougal Kitchen Cabinets and Detroit Jewel Gas Ranges make sweet tempered housewives.

JURGENS
Adams and Broad.

THE FREED CO.
107 E. BROAD STREET.

Hopkins Furniture Co.
7 West Broad St.
Cash or Credit.

The House of Fashion
Bernard, Frances & Co.
Broad and Fifth Streets

McDougal Kitchen Cabinets and Detroit Jewel Gas Ranges make sweet tempered housewives.

JURGENS
Adams and Broad.

THE FREED CO.
107 E. BROAD STREET.

Hopkins Furniture Co.
7 West Broad St.
Cash or Credit.

The House of Fashion
Bernard, Frances & Co.
Broad and Fifth Streets

McDougal Kitchen Cabinets and Detroit Jewel Gas Ranges make sweet tempered housewives.

JURGENS
Adams and Broad.

THE FREED CO.
107 E. BROAD STREET.

Hopkins Furniture Co.
7 West Broad St.
Cash or Credit.

The House of Fashion
Bernard, Frances & Co.
Broad and Fifth Streets

McDougal Kitchen Cabinets and Detroit Jewel Gas Ranges make sweet tempered housewives.

JURGENS
Adams and Broad.

THE FREED CO.
107 E. BROAD STREET.

Hopkins Furniture Co.
7 West Broad St.
Cash or Credit.

The House of Fashion
Bernard, Frances & Co.
Broad and Fifth Streets

McDougal Kitchen Cabinets and Detroit Jewel Gas Ranges make sweet tempered housewives.

JURGENS
Adams and Broad.

HALHIMERS
Selling 10 to 15

Sale of Children's Coats

2 to 6 years; one of the largest assortments ever shown at one time; every conceivable style and material; two-toned boucles, corduroy, chinchilla and chevrons; worth $3.50 and $4.00, for $2.98.

Another lot of Coats of velvet, corduroy, chinchilla, serge, cheviot, boucle and zebelines, in navy, brown, black and Oxford; worth $6.50, for $4.98.

Other Coats in stylish cuts and novelty materials, for $6.98 to $12.50.

"Wedding March" from "Lohengrin" as a processional, and "Hearts and Flowers" very softly during the ceremony.

The bride entered the church with her uncle, William Buckner, who gave her away. She wore a dark blue gown, and carried a bouquet of orange roses. Miss Susie Haulsey, of Orange, was maid of honor, and her cousin's only attendant, William Baker was his brother's best man. The ushers were J. H. Stratton, L. L. Shannum, R. Beverly Goodloe and R. G. Cowherd.

Mr. and Mrs. Baker immediately after the ceremony left for a trip to Washington. After December 1 they will be at home in Gordonville.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. William Buckner and Miss Buckner, of New York; the Misses Haulsey and Miss Ethel Wambersie, of Orange.

Ristine-Adams.
Alexandria, Va., November 27.—Miss Frankie Lewis Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adams, of this city, and married at noon to-day to the home of the bride's mother, 237 Wolfe Street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. W. Duffie, pastor of the M. E. Church, South.

Sawyer-Jackson.
[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Elizabeth City, N.C., November 27.—One of the most beautiful wedding scenes of the season, Miss Rosa L. Jackson became the bride of Mr. J. H. Sawyer Wednesday evening at 5:30 o'clock in the First Baptist Church, Richmond. The bride was escorted by her father, Mr. J. H. Sawyer, and the groom by his brother, Mr. J. H. Sawyer. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. H. Sawyer. The church was prettily decorated with palms, ferns and floral arrangements. The bride and groom standing under a white marriage veil.

Murphy-Hosterman.
[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Charlotteville, Va., November 27.—William Buckingham Murphy and Miss Hazel Dorothy Hosterman, of Springfield, Va., were married at noon to-day at the home of the bride's mother, "Monte Vista," near Owensville, seven miles west of this city.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. H. Whitmore, of Radford, Va. Those witnessing the ceremony were: Mr. and Mrs. Arthur David Hosterman, of Springfield, O., parents of the bride; Mrs. John W. Murphy, of Springfield, O., mother of the groom; and Miss Anne Murphy, of Washington, D. C., aunt of the groom.

Mickle-Mayhew.
[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Charlotteville, Va., November 27.—Charles Mickle, a native of York County, S. C., and Miss Gertrude Mayhew, formerly of Pittsylvania County, Va., were married last night at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. W. B. Mayhew, of this city. The Rev. G. B. Kelly, D. D., of the First Methodist Church, officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. Mickle left immediately after the ceremony for Jacksonville, Fla. They will make their home in the employ of the Southern Railway.

Hutchinson-Egleston.
[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Charlotteville, Va., November 27.—The Methodist Episcopal Church, of Charlotte Courthouse, Va., was the scene of a beautiful marriage to-night at 7 o'clock, the contracting parties being Miss Lucy Nash Le Grand Egleston and Robert Francis Hutchinson.

The chancel was decorated with numerous candles, intermingled with palms, ferns and trailing vines.

Mrs. J. S. Brooks rendered a short musical program during the assembling of their guests, playing Mendelssohn's wedding march, to which strains entered the ushers, who were Beverly P. Egleston, Jr., D. Quinn Egleston, C. M. Hutchinson, H. E. Hutchinson, of Gloucester, Thomas Watkins and J. E. Wood, of Lynchburg.

Next came the sister of the bride, Miss Fannie Egleston, as maid of honor, in a gown of pink crepe de chine.

Little Miss Elizabeth Crute, of Farmville, preceded the bride, carrying the ring in a silver basket.

The bride, followed on the arm of her father, she was crowned in shimmering ivory satin, with a tulle of chiffon and duchess lace, with pearls and diamond ornaments, and carrying a bouquet of white roses, with a shower of white petals.

The bride was met before the chancel by the groom, attended by James H. Price, of Richmond.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. H. Egleston, of this place, and a niece of the late D. Q. Egleston, Secretary of the Commonwealth. Her father is prominent in the business and political life of the county.

Mr. Hutchinson, the groom, is a young lawyer of this section, and a graduate of Washington and Lee University.

After the ceremony an informal reception to the wedding party and house guests was given at "Fair Oaks," the home of the bride's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Hutchinson left immediately after the reception and will be at home to their friends after December 15.

The out-of-town guests were Mrs. J. R. Martin, Mrs. J. M. Crute, Mrs. C. B. Crute, of Farmville; Miss Sarah Edmonds, of Houston, Va.; Thomas B. Barksdale, of Sutherland; Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher C. Campbell, of Lynchburg; Funnell Egleston, Sam Egleston, Miss Mary Egleston, of Norfolk; Miss Lucy Watkins, of New River, and Miss Mary Watkins, of Richmond.

LONDON INTERESTED IN MME. SHIDSHARA

Society Awaits Coming of Heiress to Japanese Embassy.

BY LA MARQUISE DE FONTENAY.

COURT and official circles in England and London society generally are looking forward with a considerable amount of interest to the arrival there of Mme. Shidshara, whose husband, hitherto counselor of the Japanese embassy at Washington, D. C., has just been transferred in a similar capacity to the British metropolis. The interest excited by the impending arrival of Mme. Shidshara arises from the fact that she is a heiress, on Vanderbilt lines. That is to say, she is one of the two children of the late Baron Yanozuke Iwasaki, who at his death left $10,000,000, one-third of which went to his daughter, the remainder going to the son, that is to say, her brother, Baron Korata Iwasaki, who has succeeded his father in the proud position as the richest multimillionaire in the dominions of the Mikado.

The Hon. Richard Brinsley Norton, eldest son and heir of Lord Granville, and whose impending marriage to Miss Marie Jarvis is pretty generally known (now playing under the direction of George Edwards, in "Gypsy Love," in London and in the English provinces), has just been announced by cable, is his mother, a grand-daughter of Commodore W. H. McVicar, of the New York Yacht Club, and seems determined to keep up the family tradition for matrimony. While on the subject of the matrimonial alliances of a romantic character, as I have just shown a wealthy New Yorker, another, his paternal grand-mother, was an Italian fisherwoman.

The late Lord Granville was for a time a diplomatic service, and, while serving under William Temple, at Naples, prior to his accession to the peerage, became infatuated with Marcella Federigo, the particularly beautiful daughter of a Capri fisherman.

The romance culminated in his resignation from the diplomatic service, and his conversion from a Protestant, who had until then, affected cold contempt for what he described as "Italian superstitions," into a devout Roman Catholic, and in his marriage to the girl. Two children were born to the union. That the life of the Italian peasant girl transplanted into English society was an altogether happy one, it would be idle to assert, and, in course of time, Lady Granville returned to her home in Capri, leaving her children with her husband's relatives in England. Some years later she was joined there by her husband, and he died there in the villa which she had built, and where his widow survived him for many years, a full-fledged peeress of the British realm, although garbed in the picturesque costume of the Capriote peasants and fisherwomen. It was under her roof that Alexander Sartoris, the English non-in-law of President Grant, breathed his last.

The present Lord Granville was, therefore, brought up almost altogether by his grand-mother, the Hon. Mrs. George Norton, the beautiful and brilliant granddaughter of Richard Brinsley Sheridan, and who died as the wife of Sir William Sirling Maxwell, baronet and Knight of the Thistle.

She was the heroine of the romance of Lord Melbourne's life—that of Melbourne who was the first Prime Minister and mentor of Queen Victoria—and she is portrayed under a most transparent pseudonym in George Meredith's novel, "Diana of the Crossways."

George Norton brought a suit for divorce against his wife, naming Lord Melbourne as correspondent. But he was defeated, and Mrs. Norton's name was cleared.

Lord Granville, on growing up, fell in love with the young American wife of his uncle, Major the Hon. Brinsley Norton, who was at the time the next heir to his nephew's peerage. Aunt and nephew ended by eloping with one another, and a decree was granted against Mrs. Norton. On the day after it became absolute, she became the wife of Lord Granville. Twelve years later she presented her husband with a son and heir, whose appearance in the world destroyed the prospects of Major Norton succeeding to the peerage of his nephew, who had thus deprived him not only of his wife, but of his chances of inheriting the title and estates.

One of Lord Granville's daughters, the Hon. Eleanor Norton, seems to have inherited the literary gifts of the celebrated Mrs. Norton. For she has published several books, a poem, one entitled "April Love," being especially noteworthy, while she has also several successful plays, which have enjoyed good runs at London theatres, to her credit.

The future Lord Granville, who is about to wed the footlight favorite mentioned above, is said to have inherited the good looks of his family. He is descended from Richard Norton, Sheriff of Northumberland in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, the first Lord Granville having been Speaker of the House of Commons during the early years of the reign of George III.

The present Lord Granville sold his ancestral home, Granville Hall, near London, a number of years ago, to the late Lord Furness, for a very large sum of money. Since then he has purchased the beautiful Red Rice estate, near Andover, which so long belonged to the Errington family. During the reign of George III, when it was owned by George Errington, the uncle of the famous Mrs. Fitzherbert, the latter often staying there with her husband, then prince regent, afterwards George IV. The features of the park are the magnificent avenues of old beech trees, planted in the reign of Queen Anne, by the Erringtons of her day, in commemoration of the battle of Malplaquet, in which several of the Erringtons took part.

Lord Granville, after losing his American wife, married again, the present peeress being a natural daughter of the last Viscount Tanlagh, who was his first wife's sister-in-law. Her former husband having been divorced, Lord Granville married the ex-Mrs. Le Breton.

Emperor William has been lately entertaining the King of Saxony and other guests, for shooting, at his hunting Chateau of Wusterhausen, which stands in magnificent preserves, about a couple of hours to the southeast of Berlin. It is the most picturesque and perhaps the most interesting of all Emperor William's many shooting lodges, and was the scene of the wonderful smoking symposiums of King Frederick William I. of Prussia, so graphically described by Carlyle in his "History of Frederick the Great."

The room where he used to assemble with his cronies for smoking, drinking and carousing, and yet where so many pieces of national policy, conducive to the future greatness of Prussia, were discussed and determined upon, is preserved to-day very much as it was in those times, even the very pipes, mugs, ash receivers, etc., being still there. Frederick the Great, who had suffered so much from his father's brutality and coarseness, loathed the place, and would not go near it; and it was not, indeed, until the Kaiser succeeded to the throne that any attempt was made to revive the former glories of Wusterhausen.

Of course, the principal forms of hipon, a number of years ago, to the late Lord Furness, for a very large sum of money. Since then he has purchased the beautiful Red Rice estate, near Andover, which so long belonged to the Errington family. During the reign of George III, when it was owned by George Errington, the uncle of the famous Mrs. Fitzherbert, the latter often staying there with her husband, then prince regent, afterwards George IV. The features of the park are the magnificent avenues of old beech trees, planted in the reign of Queen Anne, by the Erringtons of her day, in commemoration of the battle of Malplaquet, in which several of the Erringtons took part.

Lord Granville, after losing his American wife, married again, the present peeress being a natural daughter of the last Viscount Tanlagh, who was his first wife's sister-in-law. Her former husband having been divorced, Lord Granville married the ex-Mrs. Le Breton.

Emperor William has been lately entertaining the King of Saxony and other guests, for shooting, at his hunting Chateau of Wusterhausen, which stands in magnificent preserves, about a couple of hours to the southeast of Berlin. It is the most picturesque and perhaps the most interesting of all Emperor William's many shooting lodges, and was the scene of the wonderful smoking symposiums of King Frederick William I. of Prussia, so graphically described by Carlyle in his "History of Frederick the Great."

The room where he used to assemble with his cronies for smoking, drinking and carousing, and yet where so many pieces of national policy, conducive to the future greatness of Prussia, were discussed and determined upon, is preserved to-day very much as it was in those times, even the very pipes, mugs, ash receivers, etc., being still there. Frederick the Great, who had suffered so much from his father's brutality and coarseness, loathed the place, and would not go near it; and it was not, indeed, until the Kaiser succeeded to the throne that any attempt was made to revive the former glories of Wusterhausen.

Of course, the principal forms of

hipon, a number of years ago, to the late Lord Furness, for a very large sum of money. Since then he has purchased the beautiful Red Rice estate, near Andover, which so long belonged to the Errington family. During the reign of George III, when it was owned by George Errington, the uncle of the famous Mrs. Fitzherbert, the latter often staying there with her husband, then prince regent, afterwards George IV. The features of the park are the magnificent avenues of old beech trees, planted in the reign of Queen Anne, by the Erringtons of her day, in commemoration of the battle of Malplaquet, in which several of the Erringtons took part.

Lord Granville, after losing his American wife, married again, the present peeress being a natural daughter of the last Viscount Tanlagh, who was his first wife's sister-in-law. Her former husband having been divorced, Lord Granville married the ex-Mrs. Le Breton.

Emperor William has been lately entertaining the King of Saxony and other guests, for shooting, at his hunting Chateau of Wusterhausen, which stands in magnificent preserves, about a couple of hours to the southeast of Berlin. It is the most picturesque and perhaps the most interesting of all Emperor William's many shooting lodges, and was the scene of the wonderful smoking symposiums of King Frederick William I. of Prussia, so graphically described by Carlyle in his "History of Frederick the Great."

The room where he used to assemble with his cronies for smoking, drinking and carousing, and yet where so many pieces of national policy, conducive to the future greatness of Prussia, were discussed and determined upon, is preserved to-day very much as it was in those times, even the very pipes, mugs, ash receivers, etc., being still there. Frederick the Great, who had suffered so much from his father's brutality and coarseness, loathed the place, and would not go near it; and it was not, indeed, until the Kaiser succeeded to the throne that any attempt was made to revive the former glories of Wusterhausen.

Of course, the principal forms of

hipon, a number of years ago, to the late Lord Furness, for a very large sum of money. Since then he has purchased the beautiful Red Rice estate, near Andover, which so long belonged to the Errington family. During the reign of George III, when it was owned by George Errington, the uncle of the famous Mrs. Fitzherbert, the latter often staying there with her husband, then prince regent, afterwards George IV. The features of the park are the magnificent avenues of old beech trees, planted in the reign of Queen Anne, by the Erringtons of her day, in commemoration of the battle of Malplaquet, in which several of the Erringtons took part.

Lord Granville, after losing his American wife, married again, the present peeress being a natural daughter of the last Viscount Tanlagh, who was his first wife's sister-in-law. Her former husband having been divorced, Lord Granville married the ex-Mrs. Le Breton.

Emperor William has been lately entertaining the King of Saxony and other guests, for shooting, at his hunting Chateau of Wusterhausen, which stands in magnificent preserves, about a couple of hours to the southeast of Berlin. It is the most picturesque and perhaps the most interesting of all Emperor William's many shooting lodges, and was the scene of the wonderful smoking symposiums of King Frederick William I. of Prussia, so graphically described by Carlyle in his "History of Frederick the Great."

The room where he used to assemble with his cronies for smoking, drinking and carousing, and yet where so many pieces of national policy, conducive to the future greatness of Prussia, were discussed and determined upon, is preserved to-day very much as it was in those times, even the very pipes, mugs, ash receivers, etc., being still there. Frederick the Great, who had suffered so much from his father's brutality and coarseness, loathed the place, and would not go near it; and it was not, indeed, until the Kaiser succeeded to the throne that any attempt was made to revive the former glories of Wusterhausen.

Of course, the principal forms of

hipon, a number of years ago, to the late Lord Furness, for a very large sum of money. Since then he has purchased the beautiful Red Rice estate, near Andover, which so long belonged to the Errington family. During the reign of George III, when it was owned by George Errington, the uncle of the famous Mrs. Fitzherbert, the latter often staying there with her husband, then prince regent, afterwards George IV. The features of the park are the magnificent avenues of old beech trees, planted in the reign of Queen Anne, by the Erringtons of her day, in commemoration of the battle of Malplaquet, in which several of the Erringtons took part.

Lord Granville, after losing his American wife, married again, the present peeress being a natural daughter of the last Viscount Tanlagh, who was his first wife's sister-in-law. Her former husband having been divorced, Lord Granville married the ex-Mrs. Le Breton.

Emperor William has been lately entertaining the King of Saxony and other guests, for shooting, at his hunting Chateau of Wusterhausen, which stands in magnificent preserves, about a couple of hours to the southeast of Berlin. It is the most picturesque and perhaps the most interesting of